of some sold, blustery weather about seemed so seriously in earnest when he asked the latter part of November.

THE recent grand jury at Catlettaburg was in session seven days, and found one hundred and sixteen indictments.

JUSTICE is not al ways slow. At Harrodsburg two criminals were indicted one day and were tried and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary on the day afterwards.

WHAT a fall that was-we mean in the temperature. Yesterday morning the mercury was away up in the sixties; this and air is insured, attention should be given morning it was only a few degrees-eight or ten-above zero.

THE change in the weather Sunday was one of the most remarkable ever experienced here. In the morning soft, balmy, spring-like breezes blowing from the South; in the afternoon a hard, cold rain from the Northwest; at dark a regular blizzard fresh from the West, with a blinding anow storm-one of the heaviest for years.

MR. JOHN W. ALEXANDER announces himself in this issue as a candidate for Sheriff at the August election, 1888, subject to the action of the Democratic party. He is at present a deputy under bers' Journal. Sheriff Perrine, and has filled that position for the past two or three years. Mr. Alexander's services as deputy has thoroughly acquainted him with the duties of the office, and no one will be found better qualified for the place. A tried and true Democrat, if he succeeds in securing the nomination, the party will have a candidate whom the people can heartily support.

Prohibition Beaten.

Atlanta, Ga., was the scene last Satur day of one of the warmest and most exciting elections ever held in that city. The sale of liquor was the point at issue. Prohibition had prevailed for the past two years, and the question was whether | make people laugh. There are lots more of the sale of liquor should be prohibited for two years longer.

The election resulted in a victory for the liquor men. The official vote of the county puts the anti-Prohibition majority a 1,122 out of a total vote of 9,500. There are sixteen precincts in the county, of which eix are in the city of Atlanta.

The liquor men carried every city precinct and all but one of those in the county. In the last election, two years ago, the Prohibitionists carried the county by five hundred and the liquor men the city by three hundred, leaving two hundred majority for the Prohibi-

Hefin Against Auxier.

In the case of Heflin against Auxier taken up from Boyd County, the Superior Court in affirming the judgement of the lower court says:

First-A Deputy United States Marshal has no account with the Government; it is his duty to render such service as the Marshal directe; to defray expenses be takes the Marshal's money, and when he pays the necessary expenses he acts merely as an agent of the Marshal. He should report to the Marshal what expenses have been incurred, and what distance mileage can be charged for ; and then the Marshal may make up his socount against the Government, either for actual expenses or for mileage as provided in Section 829 of the United States Revised Statutes. But whatever he may decide to do, his Deputy is centitled to credit by the amount he has actually paid out in the bustness. He can not, as against the Marshall, insist that he should be allowed mileage as a eredit on money advanced, if as a matter of fact he had not actually expended that much. But this mode might be adopted by the Marshal and Deputy, so that the mileage should be taken in every case to be the actual outlay. If, without the previous concurrence of the Marshal, the Deputy presents his claim for mileage to be credited against the money advanced, and Marshal gives the credit, it is the same as if there had been a formal agreement to adopt that method of keeping the account; in that case, the Deputy could not ask the Marshal to give him a further credit by the actual outlay, any more than the Marshal could ask the Government to pay him twice

Second-In a civil action it is not the duty of the court to give to the jury the entire law of the case. If the instruction is right as far as it goes, and with reference to the hypothesis to which it relates, it is proper to give it; and If the adverse party desires to supplement this direction with reference to a different hypothesis, or to a modification of that assumed by the given instruction, he should sak an instruction for that purpose.

The Photographer and the Sitter. A photographer asked a gentleman to sit for his likeness, and the gentleman assented upon condition that he should pose himself as he chose. The photographer agreed, provided that he might pose the sitter for another likeness. The sitter adjusted himself in a position which seemed to him natural and comfort-THE DAILY BULLETIN will be delivered to able, and the negative was taken. Then the any part of the city at 6 cents a week, or one photographer adjusted the sitter, and presently showed the result of the two attempts. "That is ridiculous," said the sitter, putting one aside, "but this is very good." "Yes," said the photographer; "the first is your pose, the last is mine." The sitter smiled MONDAY EVEN'G, NOV., 28, 1887. good naturedly as if struck by a thought. "Perhaps," said the photographer, gently, "a man may be assumed to understand his own business." "It is just what I was thinking," replied the sitter, urbanely; and upon reaching home he threw into the fire a letter advising an editor to leave out a good many things in his paper, and to insert others as THE forest fire seems to be at an end per inclosed memorandum.—The Argonaut.

Building Sites and Choosing Houses.

In selecting a house, or a site for a new one, remember that where the sun will shine on the house for some hours a day, one element of good is secured, especially if the sunshine enters at the windows of the living rooms or rooms most used during the daytime. After this aspect has been found to be suitable, and that a plentiful supply of sun to the general position and construction of the house

If the ground is at all porous, a layer of concrete not less than six inches thick, and composed of cement or lime and broken bricks or gravel, should be spread over the whole of the ground covered by the building. This will prevent the passage of ground air up through the floors. Air will travel through the ground for some distance, and, as it invariably becomes contaminated by taking up carbonic acid gas in its passage, is not suitable for inhaling. The house acts as a sucker on the ground; and if, unfortunately, the site is one on "made" ground—that is, composed of all the refuse of a town-the ground air becomes the medium of disease No houses should be built without a well ventilated air space between the earth and the ground floor, especially if the layer of concrete on the surface be omitted.—Cham-

Tricks for the Old Time Clown. Here's a book I found with some of the ancient wheezes in it: "After the first equestrian turn the clown may say, 'Now I'll have a turn myself,' and then roll over like a coach wheel. Fall upon the ground, pick up sawdust, let it trickle down your face and say, 'My nose bleeds,' Pick up a piece of straw for fear of falling over it, then balance it on your chin. When the ringmaster says 'I never follow a fool,' let him go first, and then say, 'Then I do.' Tell the groom when he takes the horse away to rub it down with cabbage puddings. good speech to learn to address to the ringmaster: 'If you please, sir, he says that you said that I said that they said that nebody said nothing to nebody."

They sound childish, don't they? But not one of them striped things ever failed to the same kind, but I won't read them .-Circus Man in New York Star.

Dangerous Lemon Squeezers.

The Popular Science News gives warning against the so called galvanized iron lemon squeezers. The iron is coated with zinc, and the "citric acid of the lemon will readily dissolve the zinc, forming unwholesome and poisonous salts. Lemon squeezers should be made either of plain iron or wood, or, better, like some we have observed, where the surfaces brought in contact with the fruit are porcelain. Zinc is a metal which is readily attacked by the weakest acids, and no article of food or drink should ever be allowed to come in contact with it."—Boston Journal of Emma Abbott and the Frencher. NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 28.—Rev. Dr. Kelby, who was criticised for defending Miss Emma Abbott's interruption in church, submitted a card to the board of Methodist missions yesterday, which was accepted as satisfactory. In it he states that he is opposed to attendance of Christians at theatres, and withdraws his remarks on the the Abbott episode as far as they may have been understood to defend an interruption of public worship.

Dakota's Official Vote.

BISMARCK, Dak., Nov. 28.—Official figures from nearly all Dakota counties show that the majority for division in the entire territory will not exceed 3,000, the total vote being about 70,000. Only three counties in North Dakota voted for division, and in South Dakota fifteen countles voted against it. Only eight counties voted against probibition in the territory.
